Delivery method

The course will be delivered as a Virtual Classroom using the Zoom.us online digital platform.

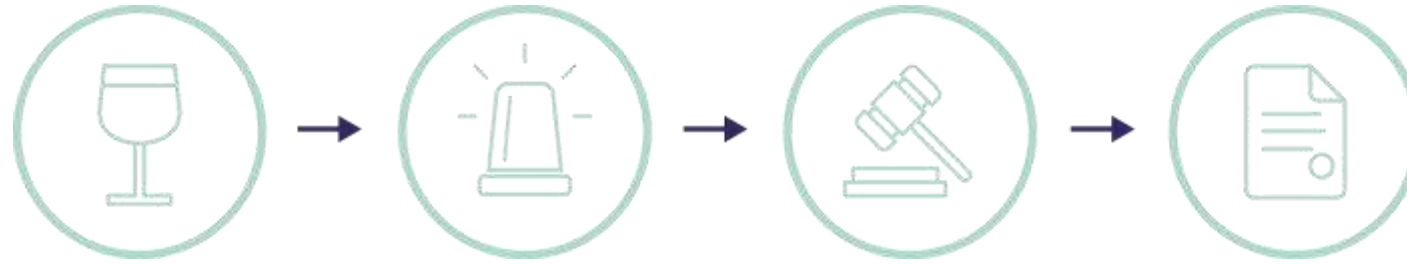

This enables the offenders to be actively involved in peer-to-peer discussions, as if they were in a traditional classroom setting, whilst remaining COVID-19 safe.

The session will be capped at a ratio of 12 offenders to 1 trainer.

Workshop classroom delivery is also available.

Course referral, booking, administration & Reporting

Stage 1 - Referral

Offender identified whilst in custody as eligible for O OCD.

Police produce electronic referral list (CR1 template) which is securely send via CJSM.

Offender has 14-days to book their course, which must be attended and completed within 12-weeks of the O OCD.

Stage 2 - Booking

Offender contacts TTC to book and pay for course online following leaflet guidance.

Alternatively, if no contact is made by offender within 7-days of O OCD issue, TTC contacts each referred offender using CR1 data to offer pre-allocated course date.

Client completes course fee payment by telephone.

Stage 3 - Course

Offender joins scheduled Virtual Classroom online, using the joining instructions supplied by TTC.

TTC Trainer records those offenders who:

- Successfully completed course

Alcohol Education Course Outline

The offenders referred to the course will have a variety of reasons for behaving the way they did under the influence of alcohol.

The course covers three modules relating to the reason for their poor behaviour whilst under the influence of alcohol. This is based on the underlying reasons why alcohol consumption leads people to become unsafe, inconsiderate, or disorderly. The three modules consist of:

Module One: How Many Units of Alcohol

Offenders typically do not know how much alcohol is in a drink.

The course provides offenders with some simple strategies on how best to identify the number of units of alcohol contained in a drink and which drinks contain the most alcohol per serving.

Module Two: Knowing Why it Matters

Offenders not recognising why excessive alcohol consumption makes any difference.

The course encourages the offenders to consider the consequences of drunken behaviour on themselves, their families, and the wider community. It provides factual statistics on the size of the problem for England and Wales, such as the impact it has on the police and the NHS.

Module Three: Staying in Control

Offenders not being able to regulate their own alcohol consumption or not being able to manage peer influence.

The course looks at building strategies to help offenders remain in control, make better choices, and be responsible for their alcohol consumption.

Action planning & developing personal strategy

The last section of the course looks at action planning, where the offenders will be encouraged to consider a situation where they might be at risk of drinking excessively and doing something that could get them detained again.

The action planning process will help structure their thoughts, so they are able build a strategy that will work towards creating sustainable change.

The course finishes by looking where offenders can source help for alcohol or drug dependency.
